Two roads diverged in a yellow wood,
 And sorry I could not travel both
 And be one traveler, long I stood
 And looked down one as far as I could
 To where it bent in the undergrowth;
 Then took the other, as just as fair,
 And having perhaps the better claim,
 Because it was grassy and wanted wear,
 Though as for that the passing there
 Had worn them really about the same,
 And both that morning equally lay
 In leaves no step had trodden black.
 Oh, I kept the first for another day!
 Yet knowing how way leads onto way,
 I doubted if I should ever come back.
 I shall be telling this with a sigh
 Somewhere ages and ages hence
 Two roads diverged in a wood,
 And I took the one less traveled by,
 And that has made all the difference.

There are hermit souls that live withdrawn,
In the peace of their self-content;
There are souls like stars, that dwell apart,
In a fellowless firmament;
There are pioneer souls that blaze their paths,
Where highways never ran --
But let me live by the side of the road
And be a friend to man.

Let me live in a house by the side of the road
Where the race of men go by --
The men who are good and the men who are bad,
As good and as bad as I.
I would not sit in the scorner's seat,
Or hurl the cynic's ban --
Let me live in the house by the side of the road
And be a friend to man.

I see from the house by the side of the road,
By the side of the highway of life,
The men who press with ardor of hope,
The men who are faint with strife.
But I turn not away from their smiles nor their tears,
Both parts of an infinite plan --
Let me live in the house by the side of the road,
And be a friend to man.

I know there are brook-gladdened meadows ahead,
And mountains of wearisome height;
That the road stretches on through the long afternoon,
And stretches away to the night.
And still I rejoice when the travelers rejoice
And weep with the strangers that moan,
As I live in my house by the side of the road
And be a friend to man.

Artists unveil talents in annual art show

Have you ever looked at a painting and wondered, "How do they do that?" There's no better way to find out than a visit to Mott's week long student Art Show. A special feature of the Art Department, the spring show not only displays works of art originated by students throughout the year, but offers the added advantage of seeing artists in action. Painting, sculpture, macrame, jewelry, ceramics — all these and more created before your eyes at numerous student demonstrations.

The variety of classes offered enables almost any student to select one keeping with his interests and capabilities. Countless medias are touched upon in one way or another and students may sample several or choose to specialize in a certain area. Design or Drawing classes are considered prerequisites for more advanced courses such as Introduction to Painting, and also help create an enriching background for other artistic endeavors.

As an award for individual accomplishment and ability, the Art Department offers the Laurie Abler Art Scholarship, founded in memory of a former Mott student.

Increasing knowledge is a part of math

Helping to develop logic and order within the minds of students, mathematic teachers at Mott have their work cut out for them. Various fields are explored in numerous math classes.

Computers are rapidly becoming more common, and students may prepare for their help through different classes. These programs allow each individual to progress at his own rate of understanding.

Math classes are giving students a beginning in an increasingly advancing field that is expanding into unlimited directions. Many opportunities in Math are waiting for those who wish to benefit from them.

Mott's Co-op master skills

What curriculum combines on the job training and high-school credit? Mott's Co-op program offers these, along with the added benefit of weekly earnings. Advised by both school coordinators and employers, students in the Co-op program are able to obtain valuable information pertaining to future employment.

Many specialized fields are available through Co-op. Distributive Education includes employment in retail stores in the area and the mastery of marketing skills. Expanding opportunities in the Health field make Health Occupations a popular choice. Trade and Industrial Co-op appeals to those students with a mechanical mind.

Office Education types, computes

In preparing for a future job in the business field, courses are available for such a purpose. Students may apply for jobs upon graduating from high school without further education.

Typing prepares students in speed, typing of business letters, and legal documents. Electing a full-year course, students may choose Business Typing. Here, time is spent learning to meet employment — ability standards required by businesses.

Credit, debit, and the four-column journal are confusing no more after a student completes bookkeeping. In this class, one learns how to keep records of business' financial transactions.

In a world so advanced, today we need classes to explain the use of our advancing technology. The ability to operate various office machines comes easy after Office Education.

New classes benefit English department

With the addition of three mini-courses and a semester class of Shakespeare, The English Department is now more diversified than ever. Almost any English skill, whether it be Reading Improvement or Humor and Comedy, is covered in one of the courses.

A popular English class at Mott is Grammar and Basic Writing, with over two-hundred students enrolled. This course provides the student with a firm foundation in the structure of English.

An excellent program exists for the college-bound student. Advanced Composition, Speed Reading and College-Bound Research and Study Skills often appear on schedules of those planning on furthering their education.

Band polishes drills for a flashy show

Executing a new "Corps" style correctly is a major objective of the 1975 Marching Corsairs. Veteran band members have to orientate themselves away from a vigorous "high step" to a precision-perfect "glide step," while sophomores must adjust to a new group and director.

Band students again change their style with the arrival of concert season. No more marching in the cold! Instead, they concentrate their efforts on producing concerts which feature classical and popular works. That bread-and-butter (repertoire) of bands, the march, is also performed.

The annual Solo-Ensemble Festival gives musicians a chance to develop their experiences as group players. MSBOA Festivals improve band performance through comments and suggestions from professionals.

Social studies classes teach awareness

Current events play an important role in social studies classes. Through newspapers, magazines, and films, students' learning tools are kept updated and contemporary. Guest speakers such as State Senator Kerry Kammer also widen the students' views on social and economic issues. Although many social studies classes are required for graduation, Sociology, Anthropology, and Black History are popular electives.

Communication classes create self-assurance

Impersonating a character, constructing a set, and promotion and publicity are all facets of producing a play. Performing Arts and Theater Production deal with the technical and creative aspects of drama. Through their combined efforts, several plays are performed for numerous classes.

Learning the art of social and public speaking are the objectives behind Speech classes. Situations are invented and students present a speech to suit the occasion.

Radio Broadcasting offers students broadcasting knowledge along with experience. The year begins with future disc jockeys preparing their own radio show.

Chamber Choir mixed chorus start traditions

Singing to their hearts content, and then singing some more, the mixed choir is continually active. Offered as a class third hour, this group consists mainly of sophomores. One of the main objectives of this course is to provide training and background to those wishing to progress into the A cappella choir. They prepare for joint numbers with other choirs, as well as music performed by themselves. Approximately thirty-five members, they also develop the art of teamwork.

Yet another concept in choral music, the Chamber Singers were another group presented. A highly select choir, they perform extended compositions ranging from Handel's Messiah to pieces of more modern material. The Chamber Singers designed their own outfits of multi-colored suits and long dresses. For the first time in Mott's history, the twenty-four member group met as a class everyday for rehearsals.

TOP: Sharon Calme, Dana Ring, and Sue Walls pause for a moment before a concert.

ABOVE: The Waterford Mott Mixed Choir on stage in the cafetorium.

A cappella tunes in on phrasing, tone

Crooning Christmas carols and doing it right takes a lot of time in rehearsals. Walking down the halls second hour, one can locate the choir room and its members. Seventy voices create quite a sound at nine o'clock in the morning!

A new concept this year, Mott's choir participated in a fall festival at Farmington Harrison. Five of the six Western-Six Conference schools took part, each school performing a few minutes by themselves, and also working together in massed numbers. Choir members were given the opportunity to meet with others sharing mutual interests in music. Spending almost the entire day, various choirs were opened to the aspects of the other directors and different techniques.

Crowd pleasing concerts including the Annual Cabaret Concert again proved to be successful. Presenting classical and popular music, the choir displayed its versatility.

Experiments prove to be new adventures

Experiments which reveal proof of a scientific "theory" are performed everyday in Mott's "laboratories." Learning equations from their textbooks, students learn to develop and prove their own "hypothesis" in various fields of science.

Offering an overall study of science, Earth and Space Science is for students wishing a basic background. This class deals with such areas as Astronomy, Pollution, Scuba Diving, and Chemistry. A full year course, it touches lightly on every field of science, including a complete lake-study again this spring, as in past years.

Botany, the study of plants, is also available. Mott has its own "greenhouse," complete with every plant from ferns to moss. In this class, students learn the care, structure, and needs of a healthy plant.

Industrial Arts train future craftsmen

Hammer, saw, bolt or weld; it takes much more than tools to complete tasks in the curriculum of the Industrial Arts program at Waterford Mott High School. Despite technological advances in today's society, there exists a large need for skillful and knowledgeable people to provide for our everyday needs.

A student in the industrial arts program can further his interests and skills in many directions. Drafting and design classes provide an outlet for creativity in blueprint work as well as understanding of industrial plans.

Extensive projects can be found in metal shop, wood shop, and electronics classes. Each student is able to demonstrate his skill and knowledge through projects of his own choosing.

Larger projects provide an outlet for teamwork among various classes. Automotive students work together on repair or engine tuning techniques. Building the storage garage provided practical experience for both classes and the total school.

Physical Education classes turn co-ed!

Sit-ups! Push-ups! Chin-Ups! This familiar routine echoes across the gymnasium. Back-up sound effects include groans, moans, and cursing. Stifled giggling can sometimes be detected behind the bleachers during co-ed gym classes, a new dimension in Mott's Physical Education program.

Another new expansion of physical fitness at Mott is the creation of specialized classes. Students may select classes which best serve their interests. Different combinations of tennis, bowling, baseball, gymnastics, archery, and many more are available for each semester.

For those who prefer a more traditional atmosphere, similar courses are offered on a non-coed basis. To sum it all up, Mott's gym classes have something for just about everybody.

Homemakers shake & bake; frost & fry

Homemaking has come a long way from colonial days. Whereas then, women were concerned with making their own soap, weaving their own cloth, and planting their own food, today the homemaker can concentrate on appearance and appeal rather than just practicality or durability.

With fashion trends adopting an "anything goes" attitude, Mott's Home Economic students can stitch together anything from slip covers to gaucho pants. Today's sewing can create an evening gown in half the time it took with yesterday's "treadle."

Teflon, Tupperware and the radar range have all revolutionized cooking and clean-up and the guys in Home Economics need all the "H.E.L.P." they can get.

French, Spanish improve world understanding

If spouting fluent French or Spanish with the natives is your "bag," Mott's Foreign Language Department has the instruction and facilities you will need. Classes at every level of proficiency are offered.

A unique feature of the Foreign Language Department is the language lab. Equipped with tapes, headsets, and microphones, students can hear themselves repeating phrases spoken by natives, thus improving their pronunciation, accents, and understanding of the language. Films, slides, and songs are also utilized to fully educate the pupil in the geography, customs, history, and culture of their chosen country.

Mott Media Center supplies information

Filing, sorting, and stamping books are only part of what the student "librarian" encounters in Mott's Media Center. Being a library aide gives students a chance to develop skills which are useful in later life and provide a service to the school. Learning the location, function, and care of microfilm, projectors, and video-tape machines involves technical "know-how" along with knowledge of detailed filing codes and systems. In addition, aides can help in returning the Media Center to normal after an "Operation: Overcheck!"

Mott's library can truly be classified as a "Media Center." Books, magazines, newspapers, pamphlets, tapes, records, college catalogues — all these and more are available to assist the student in almost any assignment.

The long and winding road that leads to your door
will never disappear,
I've seen that road before,
it always leads me here,
lead me to your door.

The wild and windy night that the rain washed away
has left a pool of tears
crying for the day,
why leave me standing here,

Many times I've been alone and many times I've cried, anyway you'll never know
the many ways I've tried.
But still they lead me back to the long winding road,
you left me standing here,
a long long time ago.
Don't leave me waiting here,
lead me to your door.

But still they lead me back to the long winding road,
you left me standing here,
a long long time ago.
Don't keep me waiting here,
lead me to your door.

'Visions' become reality at Homecoming

Tension builds up to new heights every year when Homecoming rolls around and in 1975 Homecoming was filled with excitement unsurpassed in previous years.

"Visions," the theme chosen by the Senior class, inspired all the classes to do their very best for the upcoming contest. The Sophomore class came up with an original idea. Instead of investing money in hall decorating, they gave the money to Muscular Dystrophy Foundation.

The Class of '76 dominated Homecoming. In the hall decorating competition they followed through with the Bicentennial spirit for a patriotic feeling, which gave the Seniors a victory. At the pep assembly they overwhelmed the other classes and captured the "spirit horn." Ending the week with one final winning, the Seniors proudly took the float award.

TOP: "Chris, we have to stop meeting like this. All those people are getting a little suspicious," states Sabrina Wright to Chris Harris.

ABOVE: The Class of '78 made a good attempt for the Homecoming Float award but unfortunately for the sophomores, the award was given to the class of '76.

Student Government lobbies for blood!

Blood-curdling screams can be detected again this year as the Student Government begins their campaigning for the annual Blood bank. Volunteer nurses collected donations and provided donors with "I gave" stickers, and prospective volunteers with those reading "I tried." A repeating success, only a selective few keeled over.

Acting again this year as advisor, Mrs. Fett and the Student Government met fifth hour every day to plan upcoming events, directing the concessions at various events, preparing assemblies, and creating the program for the Homecoming football game.

TOP: "My gosh, Bev! You'd think this orange juice is spiked the way you keep coming back for re-fills!" warns Barb Brown to Bev Braman.

'Polaris' staff strives for unique format

DEADLINE! Those last few days prove continuously frantic, and each member of the staff ages ten years prematurely. While at her copy desk, Associate-Editor Jo Anne Sturdevant found yet another gray hair! Her problem was promptly solved by the imaginative efforts of Editor Martha Marcero, who came valiantly to her rescue with a black grease pencil.

Giggling over in the corner, Associate-Editor Nancy Coomes and Wendy Ingram decide to exhibit a little individuality with the Junior class pictures and shape them as triangles.

Gerri Rapson, locked in the yearbook office, types the names and numbers for the index pages. Her job as typist has earned her the reputational "Russian fingers!"

At first horrified with the unique yearbook staff veterans, Liz Gaulke and Vicki Hobolth now fit right in. Escaping the unmistakable antics and cutlines of Associate-Editor Dan Gwinn, their last resort is usually body-copy.

Cheerleaders fire-up crowd enthusiasm

Jumping up and down, running, shouting, laughing and crying, these are just some of the few things Cheerleaders do.

Each year in tryouts, many a girl has failed, proving it takes a special person to become a cheerleader. The girls are judged on appearance, smile, cartwheels and splits, to name a few. The judges use the point system and the girls with the highest amount of points are chosen.

The girls do terrific routines and chants to keep the morale and pep in high gear at games and pep assemblies.

This year the varsity took first place in the ASCC State Championship J.V. division. The varsity also won a fourth place trophy at the USCA Summer Camp and cheered at a Lion's game.

This year's captain and co-captain for varsity are Chris Harris and Tammy Porter, the junior varsity captain is Sue Overall.

Flag corps & twirlers fire up halftime!

Twirling batons and fluttering flags add sparkle to any bands' half time show. Highlighting the Marching Corsairs' 1975 season is the newly formed Flag Corps, whose twelve dedicated members rehearsed long and hard hours before and after school.

The award-winning Majorettes provide enthusiasm for fellow band members, presenting another trophy from the C.A.I. Building competition to their growing collection.

Complimenting their twirling skills, John Warthen revealed talents as Mott's Drum Major. Giving directions as well as following them could be difficult at first, but Warthen's senior year was one of many triumphs.

Choir excites with 'Alleluia, Sing Noel!'

In observance of the Christmas holidays, the Mott Choirs presented "Alleluia, Sing Noel," a concert of Christmas and advent music. A special added attraction was the Ladies Belles, accomplished handbell choir from Birmingham.

Once again, the choirs utilized the elegant facilities of Central United Methodist Church. Excellent acoustics enhanced not only the organ's full sound, but also the choirs' tone.

The choirs' program demonstrated various areas in the field of music. Percussion was added to an exciting piece — "Praise Ye!" and an electronic tape, soloists, and recorders all helped produce a new dimension in Christmas concerts.

Holiday concert gives audience pleasure

Light and festive strains of holiday music filled Waterford Mott's Cafetorium at the annual Band-Choir concert. Opening the program, the Chamber Singers set a precedent for following performers through several numbers, including "Go Tell it on the Mountain!"

After a confusing change of robes and stage positions, the A'cappella and Mixed Choirs combined their talents for yet more choral enjoyment. Some of the many selections were "Roundelay Noel, Calypso Noel, and Do You Hear What I Hear?"

Following the Combined Choir was the Symphonic Band, which played a wide variety of different melodies, from marches to traditional Christmas Music.

Resolution

We travel along the road of life hardly knowing what we are, yet always daring to be something;
seldom saying what we mean,
but never afraid to have meaning;
sometimes failing in our endeavors, though never tempted to cease trying:
seeking satisfaction at every level,
yet never defining happiness:
often apologizing for our existence,
while realizing that life
is its own excuse.

But the real joy
of our otherwise insignificant efforts is that we are never quite satisfied to be on the left,
or right,
or in the middle of that road.
We are always attempting to change its direction.

Girls' Track Team oversteps hurdles

Move over guys and make way for the girls on the cinders and in the pits. This season in spring sports marks a first at Waterford Mott; the formulation of a real bona fide girls track team. With over fifteen girls ready for practice during early March sessions, enthusiasm and apprehension marked the attitude of this new sport. Coached by the ever charming Mr. Larry Timm, the track team rounds out a full complement of organized teams for girls throughout the year which was so badly lacking just a few years ago. Complete with uniforms and a schedule, the track team hopes that success will follow in individual efforts as well as collective and team results. So again it's share the wealth, fellas, help us over the hurdles and obstacles, but watch out, for here we come! Don't let our dust bother your sight!

Running way of life for cross country

Cross country, a Fall sport, is a way of life for those who choose to be team members. From August to October, the Mott harriers run from 500 to 1,000 miles in training and competition. A cross country runner has no place to hide, all team members, train and compete. Sitting on the bench is not possible.

Seniors, led by Captain Mike Straka, one junior, Curtis Carter, and eight sophomores had the desire and ability to finish the season. Curtis Carter was elected Most Valuable. Fred Leinenger was awarded Most Improved.

The 1975 season saw the team win four times and lose seven. The highlight for the season was defeating both Waterford Township and Kettering for the fourth year in a row.

The prospects of the 1976 season look good. Coach Pachla and the Spirit Squad are anticipating an improved team record. Curtis Carter will lead the team as captain. The team will be comprised of many experienced Juniors and a large number of Sophomores. Just wait for 1976!

Mott golfers prove to be real swingers

"Bogie down baby, watch the birdie," and other such puns are often heard on the putting green. Placing sixth in the Oakland Invitational made way for third place in the State Regionals. These wins, combined with others, helped them achieve second in the League. After this great victory, Mott's golfers went onto the title of being seventh in the state.

Two students whose hard work was greatly recognized were Mark Alonzi and Mark Hampton. Alonzi was a medalist in the League and Regional meets and was placed on the All County Team Hampton was elected to the All Suburban Metro Team, which is sponsored by the Detroit News, and made the All Conference Team.

Team dribbles on victoriously!

Highlighting the 1975 fall season was the Girls' Varsity Basketball team's record. The team, coached by Mrs. Fett, ended the season with a fine thirteen and five record as evidence of the time and practice the team put into the season.

Mott had a strong team this year. The girls started the season with two wins. A hard fought game was lost to Walled Lake Western, but the team rebounded back to five straight wins. Plymouth Canton, another tough conference rival, slipped past Mott. But the girls didn't stay down long, shown by the strong win over Walled Lake Central. When faced by township rivals, Mott had little competition.

Three of the starting five girls were sophomores. Mary Kay Treais brought down the most rebounds for the team and was on the Western Six All League first team. Molly Brennan had the most assists and was on the Western Six All League second team, while Pepper Forton led the team in scoring and also made the second team.

JV team ends season with fine record

Undefeated throughout most of the basketball season, Mott's girl's team ended their 1975-1976 season, with an excellent record of 16-1.

The team started out defeating Waterford Township and went on to stomp on Kettering, both Waterford rivals. When meeting these teams again later in the season, the Mott girls not only beat them again, but bettered their scores.

The junior varsity didn't only defeat Waterford rivals, they also were undefeated in the Conference. Mott's team, on the average, scored 14 points more than the opposing team. Mott also beat Milford, Bloomfield Andover, and Milford, Lakeland, non-conference schools. The Mott girl's team fell to only one opposing team, Bloomfield Lahser, a non-conference team. Both were undefeated. It was a hard loss, but Mott didn't let that stop them. They went on to beat Plymouth Canton and ended the season with an easy win over Kettering.

The team, coached by Mrs. Beebe, worked hard and played well together and have a great record to show for it.

Girls' Tennis attempts to destroy 'Love'

Smashes, lobs, serves and volleys — footwork, strategies, and follow-through — all these and more elements of tennis must be conquered for a successful season. Through strenuous practice sessions, new players, and just plain guts, Mott's Girls' Tennis Team swung their way into a much improved year.

Led by their dynamic coach Christine Howell, the girls racked up two impressive victories over Walled Lake Central. A returning group of veteran players were largely instrumental in the defeat of Pontiac Catholic and Milford Lakeland.

Since Mott's six tennis courts were being resurfaced in the fall, practices were held at the nearby Crescent Lake Racquet Club for a major portion of the 1975 season. Although this created a few problems, the team quickly adapted to their new surroundings.

Sophomores Jackie Johnson and Kim Reynolds won their first round of doubles in the Regionals match held at Oakland University.

Varsity football improves in 1975

"Dee-fense" was the creed of the 1975 Varsity Football team. Producing four shut-outs in one season is outstanding for any team but Mott showed Kettering, Pontiac Northern, Northville, and Township just how tough they could be. Four other games saw Mott allow 13 points or less. Leading a strong unit on defense were Joe Palace, Fred Warner, Jim Stepanski, and Ken Simmons, all of which were honored in post-season awards. Always a producer of great football talent, awards were won in League, County, and Metro ratings of outstanding teams.

The 6-3 season marked the second year of Mr. McArthur as head coach. But for a total of seven points in close and frustrating losses to Churchill and Flint Northern, the school record for a season would have been tied again by the spirited squad.

Rookies are strong in their first season

Waterford Mott's junior varsity football team finished the 1975 schedule with a fine 6-3 record. This exceptional all sophomore squad, coached by Mr. Galan and Mr. Kutchev, will be sending several promising players to next year's varsity squad.

The first two games of the season, the team did not allow its opponents to score, showing Mott's strong defense. One of these shut-outs was Waterford Kettering, a township rival.

They went on to run all over Western, making up for their loss to Churchill. The J.V. squad's next 3 wins totaled 72 points while the opposing teams scored only 36 against Mott, proving Mott's tough offense.

Girls' Volleyball sets it up for a victory

Although they lost several key games, both the Varsity and J.V. Volleyball team supplied much spectator excitement at many others. With Varsity sporting a serving average of 86 percent, "aces" were a common occurrence during Varsity contests. In addition, after a year of breaking clocks, lights, and who knows what else, senior Kris Pierre settled down and led the team with a 94 percent serving record.

Varsity coach Joyce Beebe and J.V. coach Kathy Larson assisted the girls with many aspects of volleyball. Their efforts may pay off with the prospects of an improved 1977 season.

Records set in Wrestling Tournaments

With cries of "pin 'em" in the background, Mott's wrestlers grappled aggressively in pursuit of a fine season. Breaking previous records, Most Valuable Player Scott Blaylock gained the most team points (157), won the most tournament championships in one year (5), and walked off with the best record of any Mott wrestler, 30-5.

Rookie of the year Chuck Wyant and his fellow "rookie" Dan Reed got an early start in their athletic careers by being the first Mott sophomores to qualify for the Regionals. In addition to his Most Improved title, Fred Alexander was the first Mott junior to enter the state finals. Bill Dushane placed second in Oakland County. This accomplishment ties the highest finish of a Mott wrestler. Dushane and Blaylock were also co-captains for the 1975 season.

Varsity Basketball places 3rd in league

Inconsistency marked an up and down season for the Varsity Basketball Team. Their 13 wins and 8 losses reflected a let down from pre-season expectations when a returning squad from 1975 that won their District Championship took the floor against a tough Pontiac Northern team. The Corsairs played a strong game against Northern but lost 82 to 70.

Coach Ray Robinson kept league rivals uneasy in the Western-Six Conference, which was decided on the last day of the season. Mott lost for the second time to Farmington Harrison and finished Third behind Livonia Churchill and Harrison. Highlighting the season were impressive wins over Waterford Township and an early win over Kettering.

Post season honors went to Center Andy Madonio who was selected to the second team in the conference voting. Most Valuable Player as selected by his teammates was Tim McKay, while Rob Irwin earned the Most Improved award. Honorary Captain for the 1975-76 Corsairs was Senior Guard, Howard Elmy whose leadership and drive brought him this honor.

JV Basketball shoots for improvement

Hustling on both offense and defense marked just one of the secrets of success that highlighted the successful J.V. Basketball team. Outscoring their opponents 1204 to 886 showed why their season record finished at 18 wins and 2 losses. Led by Most Valuable Player and leading scorer Kevin Heatherington, the squad lost its first game of the season and a one point loss to Township while winning its last fourteen games. Coach Joe Kramer was assisted by Senior Jim Stepanski throughout the season and both received help from Co-Captains Tim Bauer and Bruce Bonnivier. Post season honors were awarded by team-mates to Bob Eastham for "Most Improved Pygmy" and to Tim Loveless for "Most Improved Big Man."

Snowy slopes act as magnet to ski-nuts

Winning became second-nature to Mott's Ski teams. Beating their opponents with whopping scores, they were victorious in over half their meets.

Highlighting the boys' season was a surprising sixth place in the Divisional Meet. The girls had a good showing by beating their rival Waterford Township and by placing fifth in the Divisional Meet.

Tennis team is challenge for Churchill

Waterford Mott Tennis expected to improve on their record in 1975 when they finished fourth in the Western-Six Conference. Coach Bill Fuller is hopeful that returning netters along with new and exciting prospects will show a successful season.

Led by five returning lettermen, one of which is the 1976 Captain Leif Nelson, the team hopes to challenge always tough Livonia Churchill for the League Title. Other lettermen are Seniors Tim Keyes and Terry Grogan, and Juniors Tim Gibbs and Dean Hall. A new transfer student, Curt Curry, also shows promise, as does Sophomore Ben Buhay.

While the girls' tennis team had first crack at the newly renovated courts at Mott, enthusiasm of the boys' team toward the new look, hard practice, and good weather should provide a great season!

TOP LEFT: "After spending $40 for my tennis racket, I should invest $5 for sunglasses!" thinks Tim Keyes.

ABOVE: Leif Nelson decides he agrees with Bill Cosby's logic of "Don't raise the lob, lower the net!"

Returning lettermen provide foundation

Western Six League Champs for the last three consecutive years, Mott's Girls' Softball Team looks forward to a real challenge this year. Losing five All League players last year, reliance is placed on returning lettermen.

Prospects for the season look pretty good with lettermen in many key positions including Jan Burris, catcher; Julie Romeos, shortstop; and Robin Grusnick, second base. Kris Pierre and Nancy Kunkle will form the backbone of outfielding positions. Tammy Porter will handle most of the pitching, with her two and two record behind her.

A record of nine and four was set in 1975, and the team hopes for an even better season this year.

TOP CENTER: "But there's a hole in my glove!" defends Marsha Beeman after hearing Mrs. Fett complain about her faulty fielding.

Track team paces for an early start, future victories

Arrival of new sophomore talent and seasoned veterans has certainly helped the 1976 Track team. They are looking forward to continuing their streak of nine wins in a row since last spring.

An added feature this year is the "discus throw." The discus has been added to the track events by the Michigan High School Track and Field Program. Senior Jim Martinez specialized in this as well as the Shot Put.

The highlight of the season is Mott's Annual Waldo Ashley Relays. Led by Tri-Captains Chuck Wooderson, Mike Straka, and Dave Bair, the team hopes for continuing victories against both conference and non-conference rivals. Coaches for the 1976 season are Dale Kutchev and Gerald Pachla.

Champs try for a repeat of last season

The "hardball" Corsairs have always been a strong team in Waterford Mott history, and the 1976 season should prove no exception through pre-season predictions of Coach Robert Galan and Assistant Coach Robert Gibson.

With seven strong letter winners back from last season, the baseball team is expected to feature strong pitching built around the arms of Seniors Phil Taylor, Tim Aldrich and Tom Atherton.

Experience also shows in the past performances of Tim McKay, Jim Stepanski, Tim Cooper and Jim Essiambre. A strong run at League and District Titles will also demand good seasons from the 1975 J.V. squad.

All eyes are upon the teacher, wondering what he will do next.

Juniors

Expectations

Well, I left my happy home to see what I could find out.
I left my fold and friends with the aim to clear my mind out.
Well I hit the rowdy road,
and many kinds I met there,
many stories told me
of the way to get there,
so on and on I go,
the seconds tick the time out,
there's so much left to know,
but on the way I wander
through descending snow,
and through the frost and thunder,
I listen to the wind come howl,
telling me I have to hurry.
I listen to the robin's song saying not to worry.
Then I found myself alone,
hoping someone would miss me.
Thinking about my home,
and the last woman to kiss me.
But sometimes you have to moan
when nothing seems to suit you, that nevertheless you know you're locked towards the future.
Then I found my head one day
when I wasn't even trying,
and here I have to say cause there is no use in lying.

Summation

So long I had traveled the lonely road,
Though, now and again, a wayfaring friend
Walked shoulder to shoulder, and lightened the load.

And it seemed to me, as the days went past,
And I gossiped with cronies, or trodded alone,
By wayside fires, that my fortune was cast.
To sojourn by other men's hearths to the last,
And never to come to my own hearthstone.

The lonely road no longer I roam.
We met, and were one in the heart's desire.
Together we came through the wintry gloam
To the little old house by the crossways, home,
And crossed the threshold, and kindled the fire.

GO PLACIDLY AMID THE NOISE & HASTE, & REMEMBER WHAT PEACE THERE MAY BE IN SILENCE. AS FAR AS POSSIBLE WITHOUT surrender be on good terms with all persons. Speak your truth quietly & clearly; and listen to others, even the dull & ignorant; they too have their story. ☛ Avoid loud & aggressive persons, they are vexations to the spirit. If you compare yourself with others, you may become vain & bitter; for always there will be greater & lesser persons than yourself. Enjoy your achievements as well as your plans. ☛ Keep interested in your own career, however humble; it is a real possession in the changing fortunes of time. Exercise caution in your business affairs; for the world is full of trickery. But let this not blind you to what virtue there is; many persons strive for high ideals; and everywhere life is full of heroism. ☛ Be yourself. Especially, do not feign affection. Neither be cynical about love; for in the face of all aridity & disenchantment it is perennial as the grass. ☛ Take kindly the counsel of the years, gracefully surrendering the things of youth. Nurture strength of spirit to shield you in sudden misfortune. But do not distress yourself with imaginings. Many fears are born of fatigue & loneliness. Beyond a wholesome discipline, be gentle with yourself. ☛ You are a child of the universe, no less than the trees & the stars; you have a right to be here. And whether or not it is clear to you, no doubt the universe is unfolding as it should. ☛ Therefore be at peace with God, whatever you conceive Him to be, and whatever your labors & aspirations, in the noisy confusion of life keep peace with your soul. ☛ With all its sham, drudgery & broken dreams, it is still a beautiful world. Be careful. Strive to be happy. ☛ ☛

CAPITOL & SAVINGS & LOAN

"BIG C"

THE HELPFUL ones™

In both journeys and yearbooks, plans must often be changed and reconstructed. Certain obstacles need to be skirted, and certain problems need to be solved. Ideas are proposed and discarded. Feeling our way through a maze of deadlines, picture appointments, and financial barriers, we sometimes wondered if our "light at the end of the tunnel," a memorable "Polaris," would ever be reached. Occasional temper flare-ups and disagreements between staff members caused us to do some detouring, but we discovered that a detour often proves to be the highlight of any journey. We don't easily forget the rowdy days either!

Despite their busy schedules, Mr. Dimitri LaZaroff and his staff at LaZaroff Studio promptly provided us with the countless pictures necessary for production—and never batted an eye at some of our unusual requests! Mr. Richard Gullett and Mr. Don Erskine also furnished us with a variety of additional photography. Mrs. Marjorie MacKenzie and the Modern Yearbook Company must be acknowledged for all their help, assistance, and understanding. Type size, type style, and picture reductions can be confusing!

Financing a yearbook is a complex undertaking, involving almost as much time as actual yearbook production. Help in reaching a seemingly unattainable goal of approximately $10,000.00 was made possible through the generosity of area businesses, organizations, and individuals. Their support of the 1976 "Polaris" is a welcome indication of community cooperation. We would also like to direct a sincere word of thanks to the staff and students of Mott. Without their patronage, a yearbook is in danger of becoming just another publication; instead of the time-lock on memories it is meant to be.

A final note of recognition goes to our advisor, Mr. Melvin Rookus, who always attempted to steer our paths in the right direction. Working with him these past years, we've come to realize his "level head" saved us many a headache and formulated many thoughts useful in creating a yearbook representative of the entire school. His guidance made our involvement in yearbook an experience worth remembering.

Looking towards the future, we hope all students find their travels through education and social life here at Mott rewarding and enjoyable. With these final words, our journey through the pages of the "Polaris" has come to an end. But for many, it has not yet begun. In a Bi-centennial year, we can only speculate as to what challenges the yearbook staff of 2076 may have to face. Good Luck, whoever you are!

Stamp Tax

If one were to isolate a single incident which precipitated colonial America's struggle for independence, it would be the Stamp Act of 1765. If there was a point of no return, it occurred with the "Olive Branch" petition of 1775. This ten-year period marked a time in which a nation was fashioned, forged in the heat of frustration on the anvil of the North American continent.

An overwhelming problem facing the British Crown in the 1760's was the financial strain placed upon the English people — a strain furthered, in part, by the maintenance of British troops in the American colonies. The steady expansion westward called for even more troops to protect and secure this new land.

In 1765, by royal proclamation, King George III closed all land west of the Alleghenies to further immigration and expansion. Parliament, in order to force the colonies "to pay their fair share" for protection, passed the Stamp Act. Although this tax on documents and legal papers amounted only to £60,000 a year, there was instant outcry from the colonies against this internal tax. Many felt that it was one more burden in a list of repressive acts by the Crown.

Fear also existed among English creditors that colonial merchants and planters could not meet their debts and pay this additional tax as well.

The seeds of discontent were spreading through the colonies farther and faster than anyone expected. New problems of enforcing the taxes, conducting trials, and meting out punishments all brought further alarm. In Boston, Philadelphia, New York, Charleston, and even in Williamsburg, apprehension began to run high.

In a fiery speech before the House of Burgesses May 29, 1765, months before the Stamp Act was to go into effect, Patrick Henry "shook the spire of the Capitol" with his verbal assault against the Crown. Many cautious men who heard it, including a young lawyer named

Thomas Jefferson, suggested that "Patrick had come close to treason."

In small groups Virginians began to meet at the Raleigh Tavern and the Bruton Parrish Church to form a resolution. With the help of a colonel from Mount Vernon, George Washington, they framed the Virginia Resolutions. Before long all the colonies were adopting resolves, refusing "taxation without representation."

The spring of 1766 saw the repeal of the Stamp Act. But King George, fearing that other British territories would follow America's lead and refuse to pay their taxes, decided to make an example of the American colonies "by putting them in their place."

"Every man in England seems to consider himself as a piece of a sovereign over America."

Benjamin Franklin 1767

In place of an internal tax, external taxes were levied on such goods as lead, glass, paper, paint and tea. Several other acts, among them the Townshend Act, levying duties and permitting the search and seizure of property, soon became the law. Local government was giving way to control by "men paid by the Crown."

"Caesar had his Brutus, Charles the First his Cromwell, and George the Third may profit by their example. If this be treason, make the most of it!"

Through the years of 1767-69, tensions seethed just below the surface. Most of the trouble occurred in the port cities and surrounding areas. The press became more unified and more outspoken for colonial rights.

In 1769, George Washington, in an address to the House of Burgesses, called for a set of resolves which stated "only Virginians could tax Virginians." Soon Virginia joined Massachusetts in an importation agreement. The colonies showed unity by boycotting English goods.

By the spring of 1770, after the tally sheets of British merchants showed a strong decline in revenue, the Townshend Act died. All that remained was a small tax on tea. The American patriots still were not satisfied. Skirmishes between the "Sons of Liberty" and British troops garrisoned in Boston, New York, and Philadelphia would occasionally break out, but not until March 5, 1770, was the real spark ignited.

A British sentry was standing his post that night in front of the Commons House in Boston while local toughs taunted him. Several other guards came to assist him and soon the mob had grown to considerable size. A shot was fired and, before order was restored, several colonials were dead or wounded. What soon became known as the "Boston Massacre" was a signal fire to militant radicals like Samuel Adams of Boston. Fanning the flames wherever and whenever possible, the rebels kept alive the spirit of independence.

England remained antagonistic to the cause of independence during 1771-72, steering a middle course with the colonies, trying for some reasonable solution. During this time, however, the Sons of Liberty continued to exchange ideas through the efforts of the Committee of Correspondence. Formed by Samuel Adams, the Committee used post riders to deliver pamphlets and letters dealing with the latest British offenses, and the newest hopes for colonial freedom. One of the best of these riders was the Boston silversmith, Paul Revere.

Meanwhile, Benjamin Franklin, Deputy Postmaster General, was in England trying patiently to work out the problems between the Crown and the colonies. It was here that he came into possession of some letters which indicated that not all of the problems and questions of the colonies were being forwarded to Parliament; hence the many miscalculations created by the absence of proper information could not be (categorically) placed at the door of Parliament.

In 1773, the British Parliament again blundered, but for the last time. To assist the financially troubled East India Company, England gave it an exclusive monopoly on tea imports to the colonies. This sanctioned monopoly, combined with the tea tax still in effect, fanned the flames of revolt. As ships arrived, the patriots held "tea parties."

In Boston, Sam Adams organized 150 men, disguised as Indians, to dump 342 chests of tea into the harbor in protest of the tax.

Independence Hall — Philadelphia

This act was repeated in other colonial ports and was, according to the British, "the most wanton and unprovoked insult offered to a civil power . . . recorded in history." King George III knew what had to be done: "Suppress the revolt with troops, do not negotiate, make America obey."

The line had been drawn and the flames assumed the proportions of an inferno.

In the fall of 1774, delegates from every colony journeyed to Philadelphia to form the First Continental Congress. The time had finally arrived to display some unity of purpose.

Philadelphia, a booming city of 30,000, greeted her visitors with the jubilant sound of pealing church bells.

After much arguing and heated debate on procedures and voting rights, Patrick Henry jumped to his feet, saying, "Let free men be represented by numbers alone . . . there are no distinctions HERE . . . I am not a Virginian, I am an American."

The Congress put forth a set of resolutions similar to Massachusetts' "Suffolk Resolves," stating colonial rights to life, liberty and property, the rights to free assembly and exclusive power to determine taxation and internal policy. Thirteen acts of Parliament were declared illegal. Economic boycotts were to be brought against England, until such time of their repeal. All future imports from England were to cease!

During the winter months of 1774, tension ran high in Boston. More and more of King George's troops arrived. As cold weather also arrived, it became impractical for the troops to quarter on the Commons. General Thomas Gage, the British Commander, tried to hire labor to build huts, but to no avail. Unemployment was high, the British wages good but few Bostonians responded with any spirit of cooperativeness.

Keeping up the troops' morale was difficult, so marches were made across the bay to "the interior." On one such march, American arms and powder were confiscated by the British at Cambridge and Charlestown; the reaction to these forays was the organization of the Committee of Safety.

John Hancock, a wealthy merchant and shipper, was selected to head the group. The Committee was given the power to call out the militia — of the entire colony if necessary — at any sign of distress. Each unit of men had a few who were subject to instant call. They were designated "Minutemen." The Committee set about procuring arms and provisions for up to 15,000 militiamen, choosing Concord as a suitable depot because of its distance from the British troops in Boston.

The spring of 1775 brought British retaliation with new acts forbidding the colonies to trade anywhere except with England or the British West Indies. New England fishing boats were forbidden to fish the North Atlantic waters.

General Gage now faced the difficult task of enforcing these new acts of Parliament while at the same time trying to pacify the Massachusetts colony — an obviously impossible task. The concern of the Committee of Safety was soon aroused by the large troop movements being made outside Boston, and arrangements were made with patriots to warn the Committee if at any time more than 500 British troops left the city's garrison.

On the night of April 18, 1775, Paul Revere, was awakened and warned of British activities. While being rowed across Charles Harbor, Revere looked for and found his signal — two lanterns in the spire of Old North Church, the sign that the British were moving in force, by water.

Revere's main objective was to warn John Hancock and Sam Adams, who were staying in the Hancock-Clarke House in Lexington. After doing so he joined William Dawes and Samuel Prescott; soon they were ambushed by a British patrol and Revere was captured. He was later released without his horse. By that time, however, others had warned "every Middlesex village and farm."

General Gage's men were not in the best of moods: being aroused soon after going to bed, rowing across the Charles river, disembarking into knee deep water and standing for two hours in the cold night before marching off to Lexington-Concord had made them anxious, to say the least. All night long the sounds of bells ringing in the distance and men running through the woods kept them on edge. Arriving in the early morning on Lexington Green under the command of Captain John Pitcairn, the British troops faced two companies of Minutemen commanded by Captain John Parker.

Men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed. — That whenever any

The situation was not promising for the Americans, so Captain Parker ordered his troops to disband. Major Pitcairn, meanwhile, ordered his men to form a line but "on no account to fire or even attempt it without orders."

Who fired the first shot will never be known, but after the skirmish was over, 8 American patriots lay dead. The remaining militia scattered and the British marched on to Concord.

The Minutemen waiting in the grey dawn along the road into Concord had just received the news of Lexington Green when they saw the approach of the scarlet-coated British troops. The Americans withdrew to a hill to watch the British move into Concord. Major Pitcairn ordered the troops to secure the town and search for hidden arms.

Three companies were sent to hold the North Bridge. From the hill the Americans saw smoke and presumed the town was being put to the torch. They marched on to North Bridge. This time there was no doubt who fired the first shot.

In defense of the bridge, the British fired a charge of volleys; the first American to be killed at Concord was Issac Davis. The fire was most accurately returned, and soon the British were routed. As they began falling back, fresh patriots were arriving from distant places to replace others who "ran out of powder and went home."

Considering the number of shots fired, the casualties were relatively few; only 72 soldiers were killed of the more than 2,000 men who had been fired upon.

By mid-May these new troops formed the New England Army. In Boston General Gage waited patiently and passively for the hour of conflict.

It came on May 10, 1775, with an assault on old Fort Ticonderoga on Lake Champlain. Ethan Allen and his Green Mountain Boys, assisted by Benedict Arnold and some Connecticut troops, quickly overran the small British garrison; although the fort itself was situated on a "useless piece of land," within lay a vast array of artillery.

June 17, 1775, the first major encounter between British and American forces occurred above Charlestown, across the river from Boston. The Americans intended to entrench on Bunker Hill, but, in the dark, they mistakenly dug into Breed's Hill, a position closer to the water and therefore to the British gunboats. Later it was called "The Battle of Bunker Hill," even though little fighting took place there.

The events of April 19, 1775, ushered a new order into America. The cautious, the moderate, the conservative elements joined with the extreme and the liberal to form a common bond. They promised to defend each other with "their lives and their fortunes."

The War had begun!

Soon the colonies of North and South Carolina were raising money and troops to join the cause. The most immediate action, however, came from Massachusetts' northern neighbors: from Connecticut, Israel Putnam brought 3,000 men, including the Governor's own foot guards led by Benedict Arnold; Rhode Island sent troops commanded by handsome Nathaniel Green; New Hampshire sent the old Indian fighter Colonel John Stark with a force of "rugged men."

Poor planning also sent them with no provisions for food or extended ammunition. Early in the morning General Gage ordered the gunboats to lay siege to the Hill. After an all morning shelling, the city of Charlestown was ablaze, and even seasoned troops would have been justified in giving ground. The green American troops remained, however, forcing the British troops to cross the Charles River and begin a frontal assault. Three times the Americans repelled the attack; finally, having spent their ammunition, they retreated across the small neck of the Peninsula to the safety of the mainland.

It had been a costly lesson for the British; of the 2,300 men in the assault, 1,054 were dead or wounded. Had the British chosen to cut off the retreat route, it would have been a costly blow to the American cause; however, governed as they were by the gentlemanly tradition of warfare they had known in countless wars with the French, the English chose instead to gallantly assault the entrenched Americans from the front. As a result, the British marched with honor to defeat. If victory was ever to be theirs, English generals would have to alter their tactics.

On the same day in Philadelphia the Second Continental Congress also made history. John Adams presented before the delegates his "Grand Plan" for a Continental Army, consisting of soldiers from every colony. He went on to nominate Colonel George Washington as its commanding general.

Discussion lasted two days before Thomas Jefferson, presiding that day as head of the Congress, was asked to inform George Washington, Esq. of "the unanimous vote . . . to be Commanding General and Commander-in-Chief of the forces to be raised in defense of American liberty."

Washington, concerned about his inexperience with such an "extensive and important trust," accepted the responsibility with humility and some reservation. "As no pecuniary consideration could have tempted me to have accepted this arduous employment . . .," he stated, "I do not wish to make a profit from it."

The Congress made one final effort in July, 1775, to settle the differences between the Crown and the colonies. The "Olive Branch" petition, as it was called, was signed by 25 of the same men who a year later would sign the Declaration of Independence. King George refused to see the bearer of this document, William Penn's grandson, Richard.

General Washington worked through the fall of '75, reviewing his military assets and liabilities. He visited the various commanders and built confidence in his "chain of command." Recruiting was difficult because many had enlisted for only eight months and would have to be talked into re-enlisting. The only arms they had were their personal rifles. The present extent of Washington's artillery was that captured from the British at Ticonderoga, 300 wilderness miles away from Boston where it was needed.

During the December 31st attack on the citadel city of Quebec, a devastating defeat was suffered by the American armies in the north and many fine troops were wasted in the deadly cold and snow. General Richard Montgomery was killed and Colonel Benedict Arnold was wounded.

It was a demoralized force that retreated back through the ice and snow down the St. Lawrence to old Fort Ticonderoga that January, and only through the courage displayed by Arnold were they able to persevere. Later that spring the British sent a flotilla with additional men into Canada.

In Boston, General Howe quietly replaced General Gage as British Commander.

While Boston lay blockaded to the East, and the Northern armies of Benedict Arnold licked their wounds and tried to regroup after defeat, the Continental Congress debated what the next course of action should be for the colonies in their relationship with England.

Conservatives were afraid that any further talk of Independence would "mean suicide" for the colonies. They argued that it had been the English Parliament and not the King that had injured them. About this time, the Englishman Thomas Paine, newcomer to the colonies and friend of Ben Franklin, issued a pamphlet entitled "Common Sense."

Here for the first time the thoughts John Adams had voiced were articulated in every day language for everyone to read. An attack on the very institution of Royalty, "Common Sense" helped promote the idea of independence as a concept to be sought by all people.

Early in the spring of 1776, King George's message to Parliament reached the colonies. The few remaining conservative elements in Congress who believed a reconciliation was possible were most disturbed. The colonies' protest for rights was labeled a "desperate conspiracy to establish an independent empire."

England hired mercenaries from central Germany to fight in the colonies under the British flag.

The only good news that spring was that Henry Knox, with a group of teamsters and oxen, had delivered 59 excellent field pieces of every description and size to Boston after weeks of journey through treacherous snow from Fort Ticonderoga.

After one surprise bombardment, the British evacuated their troops from Boston. The Americans' joy was overshadowed by the realization that the British would return,— perhaps landing.

Accepting resolutions from the delegates of the thirteen colonies, Congress appointed a committee to draft a response to the Crown, against such time as a vote for independence should take place.

Forming the committee were John Adams, cousin of the militant Sam Adams; Benjamin Franklin, the learned doctor, printer, statesman and writer;

and accordingly all experience hath shown, that mankind are more disposed to suffer,

Thomas Jefferson, the thirty-three year old lawyer from Virginia who brought with him a reputation for literature, science, and a happy talent for composition; Roger Sherman from Connecticut; and Robert R. Livingston of New York. The actual task of drafting the paper fell to Jefferson, who protested that he already had pressing business in Williamsburg — that of drafting a workable constitution for Virginia. The protestations were waved aside, and he was left alone to choose the words that would create a new republic. Occasionally during those “days before July,” Franklin or another colleague would visit to offer a minor change. On or about the 28th of June, Jefferson copied his “rough draft,” on which all later major changes were noted. The copy was presented to Congress the “First day of July,” 1776.

The Declaration was read and opened for debate. John Dickenson of Pennsylvania strongly objected to the document: “I had rather forfeit popularity forever, than vote away the blood and happiness of my countryman . . . it is like destroying our house in winter . . . before we have another shelter.” Thus argued the man who would later defend America as a private in the Continental Army. John Adams spoke later in the day, as lightning crashed and driving rain pounded the Philadelphia State House. Nature herself, it seemed, suffered the selfsame pangs as those locked in heated debate within. The following day, as more delegates arrived, the vote for independence was taken and approved. Now it remained to vote for the Declaration itself, which would explain to the world why the fight for independence was necessary.

“Tyranny, like Hell, is not easily conquered: yet we have this consolation with us, that the harder the conflict the more glorious the triumph.”

Thomas Paine 1776

On this anniversary day, two hundred years ago, July 4, 1776, a bellman was waiting in the steeple of the red brick State House for a signal from a boy stationed at the door below. On the bell was an inscription from Leviticus: “Proclaim liberty throughout all the land unto all the inhabitants thereof”. Early in the evening, the boy clapped his hands and shouted, “Ring! Ring!”

It was a jubilant sound signaling the colonies’ proclamation of freedom, yet doleful in its warning of the dangers which lay ahead. A new nation would now have to earn its declared freedom. To do so its citizens pledged their lives, their fortunes, and their sacred honor.

IN CONGRESS, JULY 4, 1776

The unanimous Declaration of the thirteen united States of America.

When in the course of human events, it becomes necessary for one people to dissolve the political bands which have connected them with another, and to assume among the powers of the earth, the separate and equal station to which the Laws of Nature and of Nature's God entitle them, a decent respect to the opinions of mankind requires that they should declare the causes which impel them to the separation. We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty, and the pursuit of Happiness. — That to secure these rights, Governments are instituted among Men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed, — That whenever any Form of Government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the Right of the People to alter or to abolish it, and to institute new Government, laying its foundations on such principles, and organizing its powers in such form, as to them shall seem most likely to effect their Safety and Happiness. Prudence, indeed, will dictate that Governments long established should not be changed for light and transient causes; and accordingly, all experience hath shewn, that mankind are more disposed to suffer, while evils are sufferable, than to right themselves by abolishing the forms to which they are accustomed. But when a long train of abuses and usurpations, pursuing invariably the same Object, evinces a design to reduce them under absolute Despotism, it is their right, it is their duty, to throw off such Government, and to provide new Guards for their future security. — Such has been the patient sufferance of these Colonies; and such has now become the necessity which constrains them to alter their former Systems of Government. The history of the present King of Great Britain is a history of repeated injuries and usurpations, all having in direct object the establishment of an absolute Tyranny over these States. To prove this, let facts be submitted to a candid world. — He has refused his assent to laws, the most wholesome and necessary for the public good. — He has forbidden his Governors to pass laws of immediate and pressing importance, unless suspended in their operation, till his Assent should be obtained; and when so suspended, he has utterly neglected to attend to them. — He has refused to pass other Laws for the accommodation of large districts of People, unless those people would relinquish the right of Representation in the Legislature, a right inseparable to them and provided for in the compact with Great Britain. — He has called together legislative Bodies at places unusual, uncomfortable, and distant from the Center of their Public Business, for the sole purpose of fatiguing them into compliance with his measures. — He has dissolved Representative Houses repeatedly, for opposing with manly firmness his invasions on the rights of the People. — He has refused for a long time after such dissolutions, to cause others to be elected; whereby the legislative powers, essential to the People as long as they remain united in the same, have never been exercised, the State remaining in the mean time exposed to all the dangers of invasion from without, and convulsions within. — He has endeavored to prevent the Population of these States, for that purpose obstructing the Laws for Naturalization of Foreigners, refusing to pass others to encourage their migrations hither, and raising the conditions of new Appropriations of Lands. — He has obstructed the Administration of Justice, by refusing his Assent to Laws for establishing Judiciary powers. — He has made Judges dependent on his Will alone, for the tenure of their offices, and the amount and payment of their salaries. — He has erected a multitude of New Offices, and sent hither swarms of Officers to harass our People and eat out their substance. — He has kept among us, in times of peace, Standing Armies, without the Consent of our Legislature. — He has attempted to render the Military independent of and superior to the civil power. — He has combined with others to subject us to a jurisdiction foreign to our Constitution, and unacknowledged by our Laws; giving his Assent to their Acts of pretended Legislation: — For Quartering large bodies of armed troops among us: — For obstructing them by arrest of Travel from their Journeys for any Manner which they should commit on the Inhabitants of these States: — For stopping of our Trade with all parts of the world: — For imposing Taxes on us without our Consent: — For depriving us in many cases of the benefits of Trial by Jury: — For transporting us beyond Seas to be tried for pretended offences: — For abolishing the free System of English Laws in a neighbouring Province, establishing therein an arbitrary government, and enlarging its Boundaries so as to make it at once an example and fit instrument for introducing the same absolute rule into these Colonies: — For taking away our Charters, abolishing our most valuable Laws and altering fundamentally the Forms of our Governments: — For suspending our own Legislatures, and declaring themselves invested with powers as to legislate for us in all cases whatsoever. — He has abdicated Government here, by declaring us out of his Protection and waging war against us. — He has plundered our seas, ravaged our Coasts, burnt our towns, and destroyed the lives of our People. — He is at this time transporting large Armies of foreign Mercenaries to complete the works of death, desolation and tyranny, already begun with circumstances of cruelty & insensibility paralleled in the most barbarous ages, and totally unworthy the Head of a civilized nation. — He has constrained our fellow Citizens taken captive on the high seas to bear Arms against their Country, to become the executors of their murders and Poisoners, or to fall themselves by their Swords. — He has excited domestic insurrections amongst us, and has endeavored to bring on the inhabitants of our frontiers, the merciless Indian Savages, whose known rule of warfare is an undistinguished destruction of all ages, sexes and conditions. In many stages of these Oppressions we have petitioned for Redress in the most humble terms: Our repeated Petitions have been answered by insult and contempt. They too have been deaf to the voice of justice and of mercy. We must, therefore, acquiesce in the necessity, which denounces our Separation, and hold them, as we hold the rest of mankind, Enemies in War, in Peace Friends. We, therefore, the Representatives of the united States of America, in General Congress, Assembled, appealing to the Supreme Judge of the world for the rectitude of our intentions, do, in the Name and by Authority of the good People of these Colonies, solemnly publish and declare, That these United Colonies are, and of Right ought to be Free and Independent States; that they are Absolved from all Allegiance to the British Crown, and that all political connection between them and the State of Great Britain, is and ought to be totally dissolved; and that as Free and Independent States, they have full Power to levy War, conclude Peace, contract Alliances, establish Commerce, and to do all other Acts and Things which Independent States may lawfully do. And for the support of this Declaration, with a firm reliance on the protection of Divine Providence, we mutually pledge to each other our Lives, our Fortunes and our sacred Honor.
